

Malcolm, Bridget, James & Matthew's Christmas 2013 Newsletter

SPAIN

We went to the Asturian coast in northern Spain to hunt for dinosaur footprints, drink cider, talk to the animals and mess about on the beach. Bridget and Matthew went canoeing,

MET LINE TRIP

Our bid in the school auction for a ride on a Met Line train was successful. What's so special about a ride on the Met Line?

Well, we were sitting up front with the driver, for the whole journey from Harrow to Aldgate, out to Amersham and back to Harrow.

MUSIC

Matthew still enjoys his guitar and has a new teacher. He played for the church anniversary, and has been to several Rock Band Workshops with his friends. Malcolm continues with piano lessons, but hasn't (yet) played in public.

JERSEY

In the Easter holidays we took a trip to Jersey, "glamping" amongst the lemurs at the Durrell Zoo

WALKING AND WORKING

The Ridgeway finished, Bridget and her friend Sue are tackling the North Downs. With them both working full-time it might take a bit longer. With several work options next year some careful thinking is required.

The lemurs view of our 'Pods' and our view of the lemurs

SCHOOL

James is now well into his GCSEs and choosing A levels for the following year. He's planning another two periods of work experience at the London Natural History Museum in 2014.

Matthew has been promoted to the 'B' team in rugby and is now kitted out with scrum hat, gum shield and new boots. They won their first away match too.

Happy Christmas to all our friends and family

